

Wangari Maathai Institute collaborates with World Animal Protection to secure livelihoods against drought disaster in Kajiado County - April 24 - 28, 2017.

Local community members register to collect hay and minerals in Kajiado. Photo Credit, World Animal Protection.

Dr. Judy Kimaru, Disaster Manager, World Animal Protection managing the distribution of fodder. Photo Credit, World Animal Protection.

Wangari Maathai Institute in collaboration with World Animal Protection protects 78,793 livestock asset to secure livelihoods through feed distribution in Kajiado County against the effects of drought disaster from April 24 - 28, 2017. This initiative was through the WMI-UoN Animal Disaster Management Consortium of East Africa (aDMcea) project with World Animal Protection. It was supported by veterinary services intervention aimed at boosting the immunity of the animals through deworming and vaccinations against LSD.

Women picking hay and Photo Credit, World Animal Protection.

Photo Credit, World Animal Protection.

By Lilian Namuma Sarah Kong'ani